reply by a ladylove to her angry lover. The lover wants his gifted soul back. The ladylove replies that he has always kept his soul with him and his words the other day is only a child's play. He thought she loved her, but really didn't. He gave this thought to her as if giving a precious object just to keep it safe. Now he wants his things back as it is. Is love a diamond necklace to keep in bank's locker that is woman's heart? The ladylove means that he never loved her at all.

5 Where does the speaker run?

The poem "The First Meeting" is written by Sujatha Bhatt. In this poem Sujatha Bhatt, celebrates a rare experience of kinship that the poet happens to have with a snake. The poem describe the gradual acquaintance of the poet and the snake. In the first stanza poet describes the exuberance of her youth. sensual imagery is put to use and the poet's rapport with nature is also pictured. The girl keep running as she is excited and unstoppable. The image of the breeze circling up her legs actually show her first meeting with cobra. Though the poet is first scared to see the green snake swim up to the surface, the snake later tries her best to keep the poet comfortable at home.

What does the snake want to do ?

The poem "The First Meeting" is written by Sujatha Bhatt. In this poem Sujatha Bhatt, celebrates a rare experience of kinship that the poet happens to have with a snake. Though the poet is first scared to see the green snake swim up to the surface, the snake later tries her best to keep the poet comfortable at home. The poet later feels sympathy for the snake as she get to know about it's grievance and suffering.

Here in the poem the snake can stand for any element of nature. We try to distance ourselves from nature, for our safety, while we fail to realize we are a part of itself. The snake can also symbolised our fears, which but awaits to be conquered by us. It's all within us, like how the girl find the snake in her own house. The snake just wants to live in garden, to visit you, especially those night you are, let me join you, and once in a while, let me

be around your neck and share a bowl of milk."

7. Describe the growth of the seedling.

The poem "Fueled" written by Marcie Hans. The poem seems to be simple but it incorporates a whole thesis in a nutshell. In this short poem,

Marcie Hans talks about creation and invention.

It also balances the invention of man and God's creation. The poet creates the two images of ~~invention~~

(~~or~~ and) one of the large and powerful image of rocket and one of a small plant struggling its way up through the soil. The seedling a urge " itself up through the soil, persevering its way up, even though this is the action of God creation. But the imbalance is pointed out succinctly because petty man cheers himself by palty exhibitions of his achievement. But no one seems to appreciate the silent success of God who by a mere thought, made an insentient seedling fight against hard earth and grow up into a tree. "Everybody cheered" at the rocket ~~but~~ no one even clapped, when the seedling launched itself.

8 Why has the poet used the word 'launched' for the seed and not for the rocket as it is customarily done ?

The poet talks about creation and invention. It also balances the invention of man and God's creation.

This poem has two 'halves', that with the rocket and that with the seedling. The language in the two 'halves' of the poem are parallel in writing, while the rocket is fueled by "a million man-made wings of fire," the seedling is fueled by "a thought from God." This parallelism continues throughout both halves.

Through this effective use of parallelism, Hans creates two images - The first image including "wings of fire" and "tore" are used to show the opinion that man has for himself - the arrogant belief that everything humans accomplish is magnificent. The second half is less powerful, as the seedling "urge" itself up through the soil, persevering its way up, even though this is the action that God has created. The seed grow up by itself from the earth. So the poet used the word (of) launched for the seed and not for the rocket.

7 What are the different development of man shown in the poem "Asleep"?

The poem "Asleep" was written by Ernst Jandl. The poet shows that man is selfish. Man will destroy everything but he will still not realize that he himself is responsible for all the destruction. The man is not physically asleep, but mind conscious asleep. He start thinking of destroying the nature. He thinks that he came across the tree. He ~~built~~ want to built a house beneath it. and he cut himself a stick. Then stick become his lance, the lance became his rifle, the rifle became a gun, the gun became a bomb. These are the developments of man shown in the poem.

8 Why did the man not wake up?

In this poem Man will destroy everything but he still not realize that he himself is responsible for all destruction. Like he came across the tree and wanted a beneath house and he cut himself a stick. Then stick became his lance, the lance became his rifle, the rifle became a gun, the gun became a bomb.

The bomb hit his house, he stood there by wondering. He still has not woken up to the realization that he himself is responsible. Because he was not physically asleep, but mentally conscious. He became selfish to ~~benefit~~ build house.

1. What are the gifts of earth and how should be exchanged?

The "Buying And Selling" written by Khalil Gibran. It is an exact from the prophet. ~~At the point of departure, he answers the questions~~ A merchant asks about buying and selling, and Almustafa declares that people will not want provided that they know how to fill their hands. Exchanging the gifts of the earth brings abundance and satisfaction, provided it is done in love and justice. Otherwise, it result in greed and hunger.

2. When shall the master spirit of the earth be satisfied?

The "Buying And Selling" written by Khalil Gibran. It is an exact from the prophet. In the market place, farmers and artisans must ask the master spirit of the earth to sanctify the scales and allow on one to come in emptyhanded. Such people should be told to work hard at producing what humanity needs. In a market the need of even the least person should be satisfied. Then only there will be peace and happiness on Earth. (The spirit of the earth will be satisfied).

What are all the things that are sacred to his people?
The End of living and The Beginning of survival by Chief Seattle. Chief Seattle wants the white buyer to understand the concern that the earth is scared. Every part of this earth is scared to Chief Seattle people. Every shining pine needle, every sandy shore, every mist in the dark woods, every clearing and humming insect is holy in the memory and experience of his people. These all things are sacred to Chief Seattle people.

4 What must the white man teach his children?
The End of living and the Beginning of survival by Chief Seattle. Chief Seattle wants the white buyer to understand the concern that the earth is scared. The white people have to teach their children to respect the earth and sky. White men should remember that the land is sacred and inviolable. They should also teach their children the same. The chief wants white men to treat rivers and beats as their own brothers, not to be seen through a utilitarian perspective. And also teach to respect the land as their feet is the ashes of grandfather's. Teach them to treat the earth as mother, because the earth does not belong to man; man belongs to the earth.

5 Why are the man of weight not able to reach heaven?

"My Wood" written by Edward Morgan Forster (1879-1910)

The essay focuses on the human's desire to own property and the effect it has on one's psyche.

Forster uses himself as an example. He buys a small piece of land. In the first place, ~~it makes him feel heavy. property does have this effect.~~ ~~property produces men of weight~~ that small piece of land had an open road that the public can pass by and for the author that was enough and felt like home, but after a while the author kept looking right and left and realized that ~~for~~ a small piece of land does have this effect. property produces men of weight, and it was a man of weight ~~doer~~ who failed to get into kingdom of heaven.
